The Role of Gulf Cooperative Council in Ensuring Gulf Security between 2003-2011.

By: Wadha Al-Metari

Supervision by :
Dr. Ghazi Ismail Raba'bah

This study aimed to analyze and study the determinants and the variables affecting the security of the Persian Gulf, to shed light on the regulatory impediments and political influence on the effectiveness of the role played by the Council in the maintenance of security and stability of the region and study the nature of the role played by the Gulf Cooperation Council in the security and stability in the Arab Gulf under the international competition on the resources of the region.

That the Arab Gulf strategic importance derived from the realities of geography and economic potential, as well as political rivalry and military mounts around, Fjgraveh this region represents a link between the top three continents, and the oversight of the Arab Gulf increases the importance of the possibility of contact with the outside world, which the people of that region to host a number of human civilizations during the historical periods in transit. This study attempts to identify the structure of the role of the Gulf Cooperation Council in the Arab Gulf security system in the light of facing the Gulf of weakness in the structure of its security system, which requires the use of international force to protect the security of the Gulf. Hence, this study seeks to determine the nature of the roles of the Gulf Cooperation Council in the maintenance of security and stability in the Persian Gulf.

The challenges facing the Arab Gulf states imposed by the work consciously great for all the changes and developments on the regional and international arenas, and rise to the challenge, and remains the biggest challenge in these countries is the challenge of economic development that would add credence GCC joint, because it will reflect the against the aspirations of Gulf citizens, and increase the loyalty and belonging to a homeland, without regard to any bidding party, wealth is real to these countries is not reflected in the abundance of oil, as far as expressed by the major projects which have been produced, these projects aimed at better citizens, are the first line of defense for the security These countries face the challenges of present and future.
